Routeburn Track Guided Day Walk

Queenstown and its surrounding areas are steeped in natural history. The various walks, take you through a time capsule of strange plants and birds, dramatic scenery and fresh clean natural environments, surrounded by the vast mountains set in the oceans of the South Pacific.

Guided Walks NZ specialises in nature interpretation. We can introduce you to our famous Routeburn Track and the Rob Roy Glacier, both of which are encompassed in Mt Aspiring National Park.

Guided Nature Walks cater for the adventurous or passive hiker, with all fitness and ages levels catered for. We have chosen our range of walks for their natural history, scenic beauty, remoteness and varied terrain. We are working to make Guide Walks NZ the most memorable part of your New Zealand experience.

Routeburn Track Guided Day-Walk

The Routeburn Track in Mount Aspiring National Park is one of New Zealand's great walks. After a short drive from Queenstown to Glenorchy you set off hiking along a well-made trail through a 130 million year old magical world of ferns, mosses, lichens, waterfalls and beech forest. Enjoy spectacular mountain views and a rich variety of birdlife as you explore forgotten paths of the Maori and travel along their old greenstone trails, finding new enchantment around each corner. The Routeburn competes with the Milford Track as two of New Zealand's best hiking trails. Allow for a full 8-9 hour day with 3-5 hours of walking on a well formed track, covering up to 16kms, depending on your individual fitness level. There is an optional 2-3 hour extension for fit and active hikers to climb higher up and view the Routeburn Falls.
